COMMENT OF THE DAY

UN Aims In Korea

THAT the American Secretary of State, Mr. Acheson, is to interrupt his journey to Berlin next month to visit London, where he will have talks with the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Eden, on the situation in Korea, indicates the growing concern with which this tangled problem is regarded both in Britain and the United States. Cabled reports from Britain in the past few days have emphasised the increasing worry over the future of the interminable armistice talks at Panmunjom and the latest moves of the South Korean President, Dr. Rhee, in endeavouring to put down the mounting opposition to his dictatorial regime. British concern, however, goes beyond these two problems. Press reports speak of new Chinese armies being transferred to Korea, and of intensified Communist propaganda on bacteriological warfare; these are regarded in some quarters as indication of a renewed, and more powerful, Chinese offensive in Korea. There is ample confidence in the ability of the United Nations forces to resist any new Chinese attack, however formidable. General van Fleet, the 8th Army commander, has repeatedly asserted that his troops can throw back any assault.

ASSUMING another Chinese effort to drive the United Nations out of Korea is made and is repulsed, what then will be United Nations policy? An indefinite stalemate on the war front, with or without further armistice talks, does not commend itself to any of the Allied nations. The feeling is undoubtedly growing that nothing has been achieved in Korea, that little can be achieved, and that the unification of the entire peninsula is a dream no longer possible of fulfilment. Most people will feel this is too pessimistic a view but undoubtedly the aims of the United Nations in Korea need reviewing, and this will most assuredly be the main task of the coming Eden-Acheson talks. The two statesmen will by then have received Earl Alexander's estimate of the situation, and much will depend on his recommendations following his visit to Japan and Korea.

ATOM BOMB ON WAY TO AUSTRALIA

Portsmouth, June 10. Britain's first atom bomb left here on an aircraft-carrier today on its way to a test explosion in Australia.

The equipment for the assembly of the bomb sailed on the carrier Campania bound for the uninhabited Monte Sto Islands, 48 miles north-west of Australia, where the test is to take place in the Autumn. Officials refused to say how much of the bomb blast equipment was on board, but disclosed that a considerable amount of it had been packed. Rear-Admiral Torless, who will command the test, sailed with the Campania. Dr William Penney, the expert who will direct the detonation and record its effects, will follow later. The Campania was held up for six hours by fog before she could leave Portsmouth with the frigate Plym, also ferrying atom test stores. She carried two helicopters. Strict security will be enforced when the Plym calls at Gibraltar on her way.—Reuter.

Senate Rejects A Personal Appeal By Truman

SEIZURE OF STEEL INDUSTRY REFUSED

Washington, June 10.

The Senate today handed President Truman a stinging defeat by demanding that he use the Taft-Hartley law to end the nationwide steel strike and rejecting his personal appeal for power to seize the industry.

On the heels of Mr Truman's request for immediate seizure authority, the Senate in rapid-fire order rejected three Democratic seizure proposals and then voted 49-30 to "request" the President to obtain a Taft-Hartley injunction against the 650,000 CIO United Steel workers now on strike.

The Taft-Hartley plan was offered by Senator Harry Byrd (Democrat) as an amendment to the controls law. It was supported by Senator Robert Taft's powerful Republican Policy Committee, which led the fight against all attempts to grant seizure power.

Only a bare five hours earlier, Mr Truman had gone before a joint session of the House and Senate with an urgent request for immediate authority to seize and operate the industry until the long wage dispute is settled.

He told the lawmakers the only alternative to seizure was to "direct" him to use speeded-up procedures of what he assailed as the "unfair" Taft-Hartley law. But the President questioned whether it would provide steel for defence.

He said there was some question whether the Courts would grant a Taft-Hartley injunction against the Union and, if they did, whether the steelworkers would obey it.

NO APPLAUSE

After hearing the President's grim address without a ripple of applause, the Senate in rapid-fire order acted as follows:

1. Rejected 68-12 a proposal to give Mr Truman seizure powers if "super" emergency power failed to end the dispute after 120 days.

2. Defeated 47-28 a plan which would have permitted the President to seize steel mills or any strike-threatened defence industry after seven days' public notice.

3. Rejected 47-32 a proposal to let Mr Truman seize mills until the dispute is settled or until he finds they are not essential to national defence.

4. Passed the Byrd amendment which "requested" the President to invoke the Taft-Hartley law. The Senate previously had defeated an attempt to stiffen the language of the proviso to make it a mere "recommendation" to the President.

There is no way Congress can force the President to obey the Senate request that he invoke the labour-management law against the steel union. The amendment will go to the House after the Senate completes work on the overall controls law.

Mr Truman tossed the steel strike into the lap of Congress with his urgent request for authority to seize and operate the industry until the walkout ends, but the Senate responded less than three hours later by voting to defeat the Democratic proposal to arm the President with seizure powers.

CHANCES SLIM

Still pending was a plan to let Mr Truman take over the industry after seven days' public notice but its chances for approval seemed slim.

The Commerce Department today announced that exports of steel obtained from or shipped by distributors for manufacture or consumer purposes would be banned after midnight tonight.

The ban applies to steel on which export licences have already been issued but does not apply to United States shipments of steel to Canada or to overseas shipments by domestic steel producers or by exporters who get their steel directly from producing companies.—United Press.

W. German Newsmen Kidnapped

Berlin, June 10.

A Russian soldier and a Communist policeman kidnapped two West German Press Association correspondents from the British sector of Berlin tonight.

The correspondents, both Germans, are reporter Friedrich Weber and photographer Günther Peters. The Russian and the German DPA news agency.

They were standing at the Communist barrier on the British side of the border line between the British and Soviet sectors. The Russian and the German Red policeman faced them across the barrier.

Witnesses said the Reds pointed guns at the agency men and said: "Get your hands up and come over."

The correspondents complied and were arrested.

Shortly after the kidnapping, the Allied authorities received the report of a notice from the Russians saying their military police patrols would be barred from the superhighway leading to Western Germany.

The Allies have protested against the intermittent barring of patrols from the 110-mile "lifeline" highway.

General Vassily Chulikov of the Soviet sector said in the latest Red note that the Allied protest was "groundless." He said maintenance of patrols was an "inadmissible violation" of Soviet-held territory.—United Press.

Alleged Plot Uncovered

Teheran, June 10.

Five army colonels were arrested today, accused of plotting to overthrow the Government of Dr Mohammed Mossadegh, according to press reports.

There was no immediate official confirmation of the reports.

The Shah returned hurriedly from a holiday at Ramsar, on the Caspian Sea, when he learned of the plot, the press reports said.

The evening newspaper Nabard said the conspirators were connected with the outlawed Communist Tudeh Party. No further details were immediately available.—Reuter.

Turpin Beats Cockell

Randolph Turpin, former world middleweight boxing champion, beat the new British cruiserweight champion last night when he beat the little holder, Don Cockell by a technical KO in the 11th round.

For most of the fight, Turpin out-boxed Cockell. He had the defending champion down for a count of six in the third round, then early in the 11th put him down for a count of six, and later in the round for a count of nine.

With Cockell floundering helplessly on the ropes, the referee stopped the fight.

ALL QUIET AT KOJE

Koje Island, June 10.

After today's bloody victory over fanatic prisoner resistance, the breaking of prisoner mobs in this United Nations prison camp should proceed more easily.

The Camp Commandant, Brigadier Haydon L. Boatner, expressed this opinion tonight and revealed that he planned to send spokesmen from Compound 76 to tell all prisoners on the island what to expect if they resisted.

Prisoner spokesman from Compound 76, who had watched the bloody defeat of the prisoner resistance in the neighbouring compound and then moved into smaller areas quietly, will also be sent around with their story.

Prisoners in Compound 76 were seen burning spears before moving quickly as ordered today.

A spokesman for Compound 77, scheduled to move tomorrow, surrendered on behalf of the prisoners and assumed personal responsibility for any disobedience, Brigadier Boatner said.

General Boatner added that he had told the leader of the compound moving tomorrow to see his charges eat a "hearty breakfast."—Reuter.

Excursion Boat Rams Pier

New York, June 10.

About 30 persons were injured when an excursion boat, jammed with tourists and children, rammed into a Hudson River pier today. Eleven were taken to hospital seriously hurt.

The boat was leaving its berth for a river excursion when it smashed into the docks. Many of the 300 aboard were hurled to the deck or against the rigging. — Reuter.

Jordan's King Unfit To Reign Again

Amman, June 10.

Ailing King Talal of Jordan will never again be fit to rule and the Regency Council will continue to act for him for the next 11 months until his 17-year-old son, Crown Prince Hussein, comes of age, according to well-informed sources here today.

The Cabinet reached this decision, it was learned, after receiving first-hand reports of the King's condition from Paris and Lausanne that his illness was getting progressively more serious.

The mystery of the King's intentions—whether he would agree to remain abroad and continue his treatment or suddenly fly back to his capital—was still far from being solved today.

Official Government sources stated, "we simply have no knowledge of what the King intends to do in the future."

Within the capital itself, there were no signs of tension and little hint of a crisis.

The King's illness was regarded by the mass of the people as a "sad misfortune" but unlikely at this time to provoke any political or military crisis.

The King would be received with the honour due to his position if he returned, but would live to all intents and purposes like a private citizen under medical care, sources here believed.

SUFFERING FROM schizophrenia, or split personality, the King has shown increasing instability during the past two months.

The first signs of the seriousness of his illness were reported to have occurred about two years ago soon after the birth of his youngest child, Princess Basma.

King Talal became subject to sudden and raging fits of his staff and complaining of intrigue and plots to undermine his authority. Palace sources here reported.

These fits, interspersed with long periods of complete normality, were often accompanied by depression and uncharacteristic outbreaks of irrepressible anger.

Shopkeepers in Amman were amazed on several occasions to see the King sitting in a chair, unaccompanied down the main street, followed by hundreds of cheering, ragged urchins attempting to keep pace with the wildly prancing horse.

On other occasions the King would lock himself in a room of the Palace for hours and suddenly emerge to accuse members of his household of acts against him.

A Government official here today declared: "The whole nation is saddened by the illness of a king who is greatly loved. But it will make no difference to the nation's unity."

UN BOMBING OF MANCHURIA

Clark Gets Limited Authority

From Henry Lowrie

Washington, June 10.

General Mark Clark, Supreme UN Commander in the Far East, has the authority to bomb the Chinese mainland—in the event of an emergency. And the emergency? That could be a sudden attack by the Reds' powerful air force in support of a renewed offensive in Korea.

The General said in Tokyo today that he was in favour of such retaliation—a no holds barred fight—if the truce talks broke down and full-scale war was resumed.

But the General gets his orders from the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington. They are that, if possible, he should consult them before he undertakes any new tactics such as bombing of bases in Manchuria.

The orders also lay down, however, that if time does not permit him to consult Washington he can order retaliation in his own initiative.

EXPLANATION

A Pentagon spokesman explained: "The Joint Chiefs of Staff have prepared a policy now being followed and any new approach to a problem such as the bombing of bases, setting up a blockade, or putting Nationalist Chinese back on the mainland would have to be authorized by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. But obviously no supreme commander can be completely hamstringed by ties that bind him. If an emergency arose there are many things he could do to meet it and no doubt he will do what is best."

But it was pointed out that General Clark does not have permission to start indiscriminate bombing of China.

The bombing of China has been a sore point among the allied nations and the general policy is to restrict the fighting to Korea—if possible.

Though several prominent Americans have openly supported a naval blockade or an air attack on the mainland, Washington, like London and other capitals, doesn't lean heavily towards the idea unless, of course, the occasion really demands it.

The plan, so far as it is possible to determine in advance, is simply to concentrate an attack on Manchurian bases from which Communist attacks are launched. — London Express Service.

JAPAN ADMITTED TO ECAFE

Associate Member of UN Body

United Nations, June 10.
The Economic and Social Council today admitted Japan as an associate member of the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East.

The vote, on a Pakistan proposal, was 17 in favour with only the Philippines abstaining. Speaking on his resolution in favour of admitting Japan as an associate member of ECAFE, Mr. Said Hasan, of Pakistan, said that the adoption of the resolution would permit Japan to be represented immediately on the Commission and on the various working bodies.

The admission of Japan would benefit not only the economy of the countries of the region but of Japan herself, Mr. Hasan said.

Mr. Adriano R. Garcia (Philippines) said that he would support that part of the resolution which would admit Japan to the "geographic scope" of ECAFE but would abstain on the resolution to admit Japan to associate membership.

GRAVEST PROBLEM
Dr. P. S. Lokanathan, the Executive Secretary, introducing the report on ECAFE, said that the low level of investment in the region was the gravest problem.

Savings were also very poor and attempts by governments to increase savings had not been very successful.

Anything that could be done towards encouraging a larger flow of investment in the region would be well worth while, he said.

The Council unanimously adopted the report of the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East.—Reuter.

MP's Query On "Monty" Statement

London, June 10.
The Prime Minister, Mr. Winston Churchill, was questioned in the House of Commons today about an alleged statement of Field-Marshal Montgomery in Athens.

In the statement, according to Labour Member, Mr. Arthur Lewis, he said that no nation should maintain in peace-time such armed forces that the standard of life of its people suffered.

Mr. Lewis asked what the Government had done to ensure that British military men who take international posts are precluded from making statements which could cause difficulties in international relationships.

Mr. Churchill replied that he would like to have the full text of what Field-Marshal Montgomery said. He would like to refer the matter to him before answering a question about it, Mr. Churchill added.—Reuter.

FOREIGN LEGION JUST AS TOUGH TODAY AS EVER

Old Etonian's Graphic Story

London, June 10.

The French Foreign Legion, whose battles with the Bedouins became a legend, are just as tough as they used to be, according to an Englishman just returned from serving with the Legion in Indo-China.

For nearly two years, 29-year-old Adrian Liddell Hart, Old Etonian and Cambridge University graduate, trained and fought alongside men of many nations, including ex-S.S. troops and Red Army deserters.

"In my opinion the French would have been out of Indo-China long ago if it had not been for the Legion," Liddell Hart said. Mr. Hart believes that some 60,000 of the total of 173,000 French and French-trained forces in Indo-China came from the Legion.

He considers that their experience of more than 100 years of unorthodox fighting in the hot Sahara Desert makes them particularly well suited to the guerrilla-type warfare of the ricefields and swamps of Indo-China.

But, travelling in jeeps and armoured cars, and wearing little more than a pair of bathing trunks, the Legionnaires in

NYLONS WERE SIGN OF "GUILT"

London, June 10.
Frau Eva Engmann, former secretary in the office of East Germany's bearded Deputy Prime Minister, Otto Nuschke, has been jailed as a spy.

Arrested a year ago, she has been the subject of a personal appeal by Herr Nuschke to the secret police chief, Wilhelm Zaisser.

Believing in the 26-year-old girl's innocence, the Deputy Prime Minister demanded a proper trial for her but Zaisser, former Red general in the Spanish Civil War and a strong man of Eastern Germany, replied: "We have learned from the Russians that it is better just to make these people disappear."

He has ordered Eva Engmann to prison for 12 years.

Frau Eva Engmann first attracted attention by her nylon stockings. Zaisser's men believed she must have Western connections. All they found was an East German Communist party friend, who is still at liberty.

But they arrested Eva Engmann just the same.

Menzies On Visit To Netherlands

Amsterdam, June 10.
Two hours later than expected, the Australian Premier, Mr. Robert Menzies, arrived by plane from London at Amsterdam airport today.

He was met by the Australian Ambassador, Mr. A. T. Sterling, and the British Ambassador, Sir Neville Montague Butler.

Mr. Menzies was accompanied by the Director-General of the Australian Foreign Ministry, Mr. Alan Watt.

Mr. Menzies will confer with the Dutch authorities including the Premier, Willem Drees.

It is reported that Mr. Menzies is carrying an invitation for Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard to visit Dutch immigrants in Australia.

Mr. Menzies, when asked whether this was true, paused for several seconds before replying that he could not answer this question.—United Press.

Indo-China are far removed from the galloping adventures, in famous white caps and baggy trousers, who quelled the unruly nomadic tribes of North Africa on camel and horseback. For Liddell Hart found that though the Legion retained the tough discipline and cosmopolitan character which first attracted romantic novelists, it is today a modern army, highly mechanised, with a parachute unit, engineering regiment and technical workshops.

VARIED CAREER

Liddell Hart, son of one of Britain's most famous military commentators, served with the Royal Navy during the war. Since then, he has worked with the United Nations Secretariat in London and New York—for a time as Secretary to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission—with the Control Commission in Berlin as Political Officer, and with a British newspaper as Parliamentary correspondent.

After reading many of the 400-odd books based on life in the Foreign Legion, he decided, at the beginning of 1950, to see the Legion and the war in Indo-China for himself.

He got his first surprise at the Legion's European recruiting depot. They were not the "Marseilles" he found that the old story of "Join and no questions asked" was far from true. They asked him plenty.

If a volunteer is proved a criminal he is invariably handed over—but outside the barracks gates, as there is an unwritten law against arrests inside. While Liddell Hart was there, an American would-be recruit wanted in Berlin was arrested.

FEW BRITONS

Many of the stock questions probe into a volunteer's political background. Ardent Communists are not welcome. For this and other reasons, many of the hundreds a week who go to Marseilles are turned away.

But the Legion has always had a strong German element. Liddell Hart found that Germans, including former S.S., Wehrmacht and Afrika Corps men recruited from prisoner-of-war camps at the end of the war, constitute the main body of the international force today.

There are also war-time quillings afraid to return to their own countries, and a smattering of deserters from the Red Army, but very few Britons or Americans.

The minimum period of service is five years. Liddell Hart was invalided out of active ground a few months ago and has since spent weeks in hospital recovering from tropical diseases.

Liddell Hart, who was an unsuccessful Liberal candidate in both the 1945 and 1950 General Elections, intends to devote his time now to writing a book on the post-war world, which will include some of his Legion experiences.—Reuter.

NO DEMAND FOR TURKISH COTTON

London, June 10.
Mr. Harry Hynd (Labour) asked in the House of Commons today what difficulties prevented raw cotton being imported from Turkey.

Churchill Scolds A Labour MP

London, June 10.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Winston Churchill, scolded a Labour Member in the House of Commons today for calling President Syngman Rhee of South Korea a "thug and blackguard."

The Labour Member, Mr. Desmond Donnelly, asked if Mr. Churchill knew "the great concern which exists in the country about this thug and blackguard in Korea."

Conservatives shouted protests and Mr. Churchill declared, "No responsible Government in this House would like to have such expressions used without any regard to international considerations."

Another Labour Member, Mr. Arthur Henderson, asked Mr. Churchill if he would instruct the Defence Minister, Lord Alexander, who is visiting the Far East, to tell Dr. Rhee of Britain's concern over the constitutional crisis in South Korea.

Mr. Churchill replied that the British Charge d'Affaires in Pusan had done this. A former Labour Defence Minister, Mr. Emanuel Shinwell, asked if the representations made had changed Dr. Rhee's attitude.

Mr. Churchill said that the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, would answer questions on this matter tomorrow.—Reuter.

NEW LINER STEAMS AT 34 KNOTS

New York, June 10.

The new American liner, United States, reached a speed considerably in excess of 34 knots in trials last night, a Maritime Administration officer announced today.

"The Captain of the ship said: 'The United States exceeded the known speed of any merchant or large naval craft by a substantial margin. The maximum speed attained will not be disclosed for security reasons.'"

The 11,500-ton vessel is designed for rapid conversion to a troop transport.

The fastest ship at present on the trans-Atlantic run is Britain's 11,000-ton Queen Mary, which set a record average speed of 31.69 knots in 1938.

The United States will make her maiden voyage on July 3 from New York to Southampton with 2,000 passengers and a crew of about 1,000.—Reuter.

Importation To Continue

London, June 10.

The Government rejected a proposal in the House of Commons today that it should stop the import of ammunition from India under special licence as long as British arms foundries were short of their raw material.

Asked by Mr. M. Lindsay, Conservative, if he would do this, Mr. Peter Thorneycroft, President of the Board of Trade, replied, "No Sir."—Reuter.

CHANGE IN BRITISH POLICY?

Prediction Made By Tokyo Paper

Tokyo, June 11.
Readjustments in the balance of top-level United Kingdom and United States Far East policies were predicted by the widely-read Mainichi newspaper in commenting on the arrival of British Defence Minister, Field Marshal Earl Alexander, and his party.

Contending that uneasiness prevailed in Britain over the Korean situation, the Mainichi suggested that Lord Alexander's visit might influence the future course of true negotiations on the prisoner issue.

The paper said that British participation in the truce talks was vigorously advocated in the British Press.

The Mainichi saw significance in the coming visit of the British High Commissioner in Southeast Asia, Mr Malcolm MacDonald, and said Japan might expect to be included in the Colombo Plan to strengthen Asian countries as a result of high-level talks here.

The Mainichi claimed that Lord Alexander's conferences would have added significance in view of the expansion of the United States Embassy organization in Japan. The paper described the future of the American Embassy here as "virtually the Far Eastern headquarters of the State Department."

The Mainichi concluded: "New and adjusted policies of the West towards the Far East will be discussed between the British visitors and United States diplomats and military in Japan and Korea."—Reuter.

Naval War Games In The Med.

Valletta, June 10.
Over 80 warships, including two aircraft-carriers and five cruisers, and 100 aircraft from five nations are massing in the Mediterranean tonight for exercises "Beehive" opening on Wednesday—the biggest Allied manoeuvres in this area.

British, Greek and Italian warships are sailing tonight against a "Blue Force," the American 6th Fleet. The latter will attempt to cut convoy routes between Greece, Italy and the Western Mediterranean and capture Malta.

French units are also taking part.

The climax of the manoeuvres under the overall command of Britain's new naval Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean, Admiral Earl Mountbatten, will be a mass amphibious assault on Malta by American Marines opposed by British Commandos and light infantry.—Reuter.

MacArthur Picked To Deliver "Keynote" Address

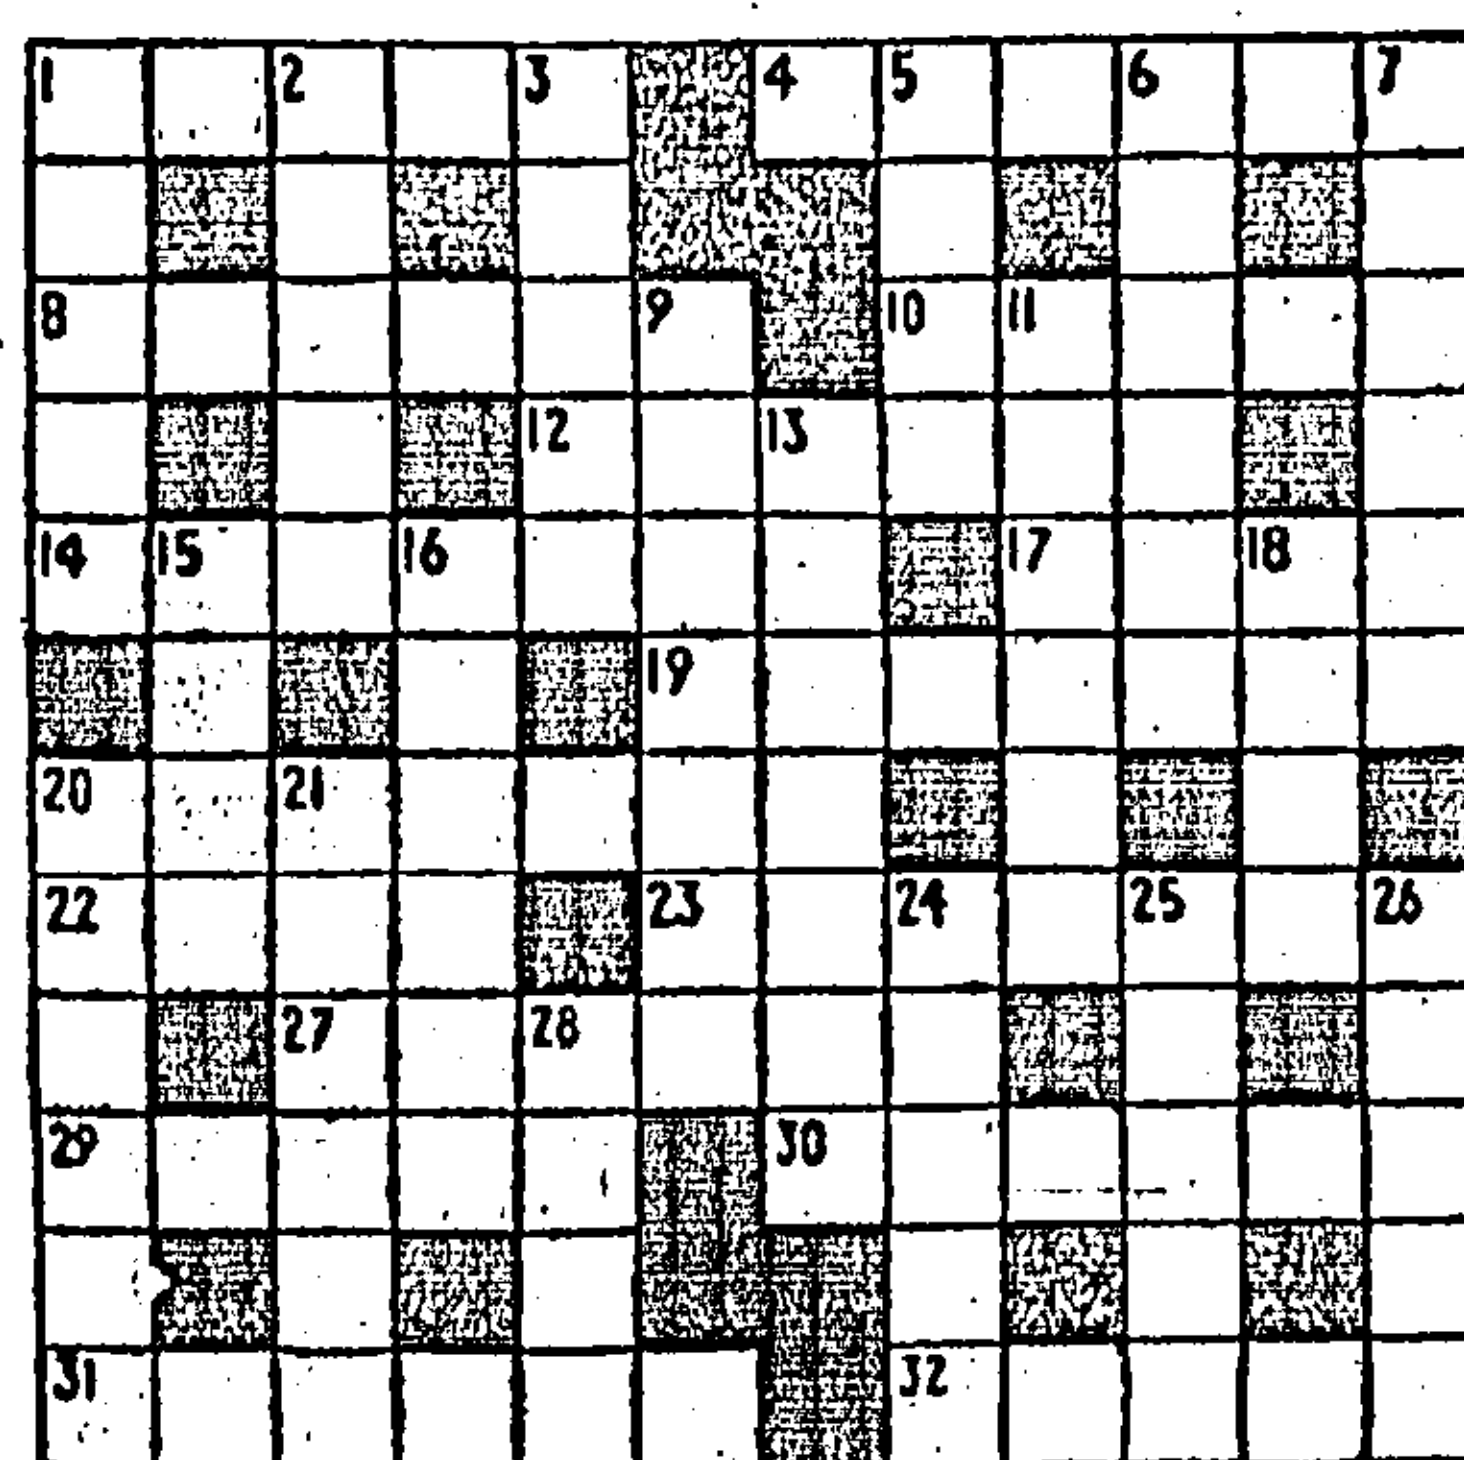

Chicago, June 10.
General MacArthur was today chosen to deliver the "keynote" address at the Republican National Convention here on July 7.

The "keynote" is the main opening speech that is to set the tone of the convention and campaign. Ordinarily the keynote speaker is made temporary chairman but not this year.

The choice of General MacArthur was made in private by the Convention's 46-member Arrangements Committee. It was a victory for supporters of Senator Taft.

Though the designation of General MacArthur had been resisted by backers of General Eisenhower, the Senator's chief rival, there were only scattered "no's" when the vote was taken, a spokesman said.

First Post-War Envoy To Britain Outlines Views

London, June 10.

Shunioshi Matsumoto, Japanese Ambassador to Britain, said today that Japan must seek a middle road between British and American foreign policies and must stamp out unfair Japanese trade competition in order to establish friendly international relations.

In an interview, the 51-year-old diplomat who was twice Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs during the war and who is Japan's first Ambassador to Britain for 11 years, said that he faced a difficult task.

He said, "I cannot say anything about Japan's foreign policy. At the moment the situation is difficult, particularly in Far East affairs."

1st Royal Fusiliers Honoured

London, June 10.

The 1st Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers (City of London Regiment), which sailed from Liverpool for Korea in ten days' time, was honoured by the capital today.

Thousands of Londoners watched the long column of battle-dressed soldiers exercising their Regimental privilege of marching through the city with bayonets fixed, drums beating and colours flying.

The battalion marched past the Regimental War Memorial in Holborn and the Regimental Chapel and Garden of Remembrance at St. Sepulchre's Church, Holborn—Viaduct, to the Regimental depot in the Tower of London.

At the Tower, where the Fusiliers were raised in 1883, a salute was taken at the historic "Traitors' Gate" by Lieutenant-General Sir Ronald Scobie, Lieutenant of the Tower.

The Fusiliers then marched through the Tower to the square of Waterloo Barracks—Regimental depot since 1950—where the colours were marched off.

The Corporation of London later acted as hosts to the battalion at a luncheon in the Guildhall.

The battalion came here from Germany in April, having served abroad almost continuously for 30 years.—Reuter.

Tribute To Peking Government

New Delhi, June 10.

Mrs Vijaya Pandit, who led a recent Indian cultural delegation to China, said today that the Peking Government had come to stay.

Addressing members of Parliament on her visit, Mrs Pandit, former Ambassador to America, said two of Peking's great achievements were land reform and emancipation of women.

These measures had released tremendous forces of popular enthusiasm.

She said that the Huang River project which the delegation visited was not a great engineering feat compared with some Indian projects. But when one saw how 2,500,000 Chinese had built it within six months one could not but share their pride.

She said the Chinese did not take pride in anything outside, whether Soviet or otherwise. Their whole aim was to build up a new China with their own efforts.—Reuter.

Swiss To Stay In E.P.U.

Berne, June 10.

The Swiss Parliament today voted to renew Switzerland's participation in the European Payments Union (E.P.U.) for two years.

It also agreed that the Federal Council should open a new credit for the E.P.U. of 270,000,000 francs.—Reuter.

Reformer's Claim For Damages

LABEL ACTION BY WOMAN

Paris, June 10.

Marthe Richard, who sponsored the law closing Paris brothels, today claimed 1,000,000 francs damages from a publisher who wrote that she had "deprived thousands of unhappy men of a service she herself rendered in Spain."

Madame Richard, 63, has decried in books and articles her liaison with a German officer in Madrid during World War I from which she claimed to have gained important information for the French Secret Service.

A Paris Court today postponed for one week its verdict on her libel action against Jean Galtier-Boissiere in the periodical Grapouillot.

In a special number entitled "The Force of the Secret Services," it:

1.—Printed Madame Richard's photograph next to that of Mata Hari, exotic dancer shot by the French for spying in World War I.

2.—Called Madame Richard a "post-fabricated heroine who extracted the maximum publicity and financial profit from the most famous information."

3.—Said that she "deprived thousands of unhappy men, who could not lay claim to the same patriotic motives, of a service which she herself rendered in Spain."

Madame Richard had said that she extracted information from Von Krohn, Naval Attache at the German Embassy in Madrid during the 1914-18 war. Galtier-Boissiere, a man of giant stature, is known as France's most sordid editor.—Reuter.

AIR MISHAP INQUIRY

London, June 10.

The French authorities are making an inquiry into the accident in which a British Hermes airliner crashed-landed on the edge of the Sahara Desert in French West Africa on May 20. Lord Leathers, Minister for Co-ordination of Transport, Fuel and Power, who disclosed this in the House of Lords today, said that the inquiry was in accordance with international agreement.

Asked if the findings of the French inquiry would be accepted, Lord Leathers said that would be settled when they knew what the French decision was. If there was any need for a British inquiry it would be made.—Reuter.

WESTERN POLICY NOT DIRECTED AGAINST SOVIET

Statement By Eden

London, June 10.

The Foreign Secretary, Mr Anthony Eden, today declared that he was impressed by the resolution and the calmness of the population in Berlin on his recent visit.

He was making a statement in the House of Commons on the Bonn conventions and the European Army Treaty which were signed last month.

He recalled that at the time of the signing of the contractual treaties in Bonn, France and America issued a declaration on Berlin. This meant, he said, that the three Powers would maintain armed forces there and treat any attack against Berlin, from any quarter, as an attack upon their forces and themselves.

Mr Eden called the new relationship with the Federal Republic a sound basis for Germany's future co-operation with the Western Powers.

"Though forced upon us by Soviet actions, our policy in Germany has never been directed against the Soviet Union, nor are the present agreements," Mr Eden said.

Mr Eden said that the Bonn agreements would be subject to review and modification by all the parties in the event of the unification of Germany, the creation of a European Federation, or any development agreed by the signatories to be fundamental.

TO BE DEBATED
The agreements, if ratified and brought into force, will make possible an intimacy of partnership and collaboration among the ancient nations of Europe which they have long dreamed of," Mr Eden declared.

There would be a debate in the Commons on the agreements and the British guarantee to the European Army before they were ratified, he added.

Labour Opposition cheers greeted this announcement.

Mr Eden told Mr Clement Attlee, Labour leader, that the latest Soviet note on Germany "was not a reply that carried us very much further, to put it mildly."

"We are engaged on our answer and we shall do our best to ensure that our reply is constructive," Reuter.

ACHESON'S APPEAL
Washington, June 10.

The Secretary of State, Mr Dean Acheson, today asked the Senate to approve with minimum delay the contractual agreements recently concluded with Western Germany as well as the United States Defence guarantee to Western Germany resulting from these agreements.

Mr Acheson was speaking to the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee which today began a study of documents submitted to the Senate for ratification.

Mr Acheson said the agreements would give Western Germany the greatest in-

What Can We Expect Of Atomic Power?

By PROFESSOR F. E. SIMON

CAN we expect any atomic power reactors or engines to be running on an economic basis within the next ten years?

No. Before atomic energy can be introduced on a large scale, a great number of technical problems of an unusual nature have to be solved, and prototypes must be run for a number of years under actual operating conditions.

Sufficient power stations to look after a considerable part of our electricity supplies, involving the investment of very large sums, cannot be expected in less than, say, 30 years.

It is quite possible, however, that power units for special purposes, where economy is not of overriding importance—as, for instance, for submarines—may be running in the next few years.

For the next 30-50 years conventional fuels will certainly hold the field with energy from nuclear fission as a secondary source. I do not think that solar energy will be able to compete with either of those sources until considerably later.

In the more distant future, another form of atomic energy may be developed, the synthesis of helium from hydrogen, a process which provides the energy of the stars.

While, at present, no practical way can be seen to run this reaction in a controlled manner, it seems possible that it may become the major source of power in the distant future.

Do you believe we know more or less about atomic theory and atomic technology than the Russians?

The Russians have a number of excellent scientists and mathematicians. They have very probably put a much bigger percentage of their whole national effort into this matter than we, and, of course, they have produced bombs.

While it is improbable that they know more about the fundamentals or the technology than we do, they may well keep ahead of us in the amount of plutonium produced.

Applications, as both depend, to a large extent on the production of plutonium, which is made in atomic piles and can be used either for the bomb or for producing energy. This is unfortunate from the point of view of the international control of atomic energy. On the other hand, funds made available for the weapon help to develop the peaceful applications.

Should Harwell be taken away from the Civil Service at this stage or left where it is?

Most experts now agree that it would have been better for the British Atomic Energy Project to have stayed outside the Civil Service from the beginning.

Novel developments such as this need more flexibility than is possible within the Civil Service. Whether now is the right moment to take it away is doubted by many who are afraid of the disruptive effect at this stage. It seems to me, however, that in the long run it has to be done, particularly if we consider that, sooner or later, private industry must play a more active part in nuclear development.

Are we short of the right sort of atomic scientists or atomic technologists?

We are certainly short of the right type of technologists, in particular chemical technologists and metallurgists, who are, in many ways, more important than physicists.

This shortage is due to the unsatisfactory state of higher technological education in Britain, as well as to an antiquated attitude of mind in many parts of industry. The position in respect of scientists is as a whole satisfactory.

Where do you think we stand today? Can we afford to spend even more money on our atomic projects?

One point seems clear: we will not get a full exchange of information with America until we can show some results of our own.

Quite apart from this, the proper development of atomic energy seems essential if we want to take again an active part in the world.

While the necessity of running our own power plants on atomic energy may not be so urgent as in other countries who have no coal deposits, a lead in this field would be invaluable for our political and economic position in the world.

We must pay for our imports by exporting high-class equipment; the under-developed areas and those countries which do not possess our scientific and technological potentialities would be eager customers for our atomic "know-how."

The funds for the necessary developments in this country are appreciable, but they are productive and small compared with those we spend now for rearmament.

I want to warn, however, that it would be quite wrong to concentrate on atomic developments alone. Fundamental research is indivisible, and funds are needed also for science and technology as a whole, for technological education and for the modernisation of industry.

If all these conditions are fulfilled, then I believe that atomic energy can become an essential factor in regaining this country's position in the world.

As the Communists pillory ANNA PAUKER, Rumania's Foreign Minister, who first told of the indiscreet statements which started her fade-out in the party, writes from Berlin:—

Alas, poor Anna—she talked

POOR Anna Pauker! So it caught up with her at last: all that diplomatic gossip about the tete-a-tete she had with our own dashing Sir Charles Penke, one summer's day in Belgrade almost four years ago.

She has been sacked from the Rumanian Communist Party Politburo and other top committees, and this is what the party paper says about her:—

"Right-wing deviationist....lived on 'a slope of aristocracy'....tore herself away from the masses."

That is the woman who not so long ago was Stalin's most trusted confidante in South-East Europe.

She confessed her "errors," says her party paper, and promised to toe the line from now on. So for the moment she is still Foreign Minister—but that does not make her fall any less humiliating.

I am only astonished that it has not come sooner. For in the cut-throat intrigue of King Joe

ANNA She deviated SIR CHARLES He listened

Stalin's court, it is remarkable that her enemies have taken so long to exploit her indiscreet talk to Sir Charles about her fellow-Rumanians.

"They are lazy good-for-nothing beasts and brutes, at only for the pigsty," she told Sir Charles.

"They have everything a people could wish for—fertile lands, rich oilfields, splendid rivers and waterways, devoted leaders. They have only to work and use what nature has given them to become the richest and most progressive people in Europe, but they refuse, they prefer to remain the miserable backward hogs that they are."

Sir Charles, outstanding among our youngest diplomats, put all

Sitting On The Fence

By NATHANIEL GUBBINS

Jennifer, the hen that laid ten eggs in 45 minutes at Bodmore Heath Farm, Warwickshire, on May 20, died 25 hours afterwards.

WHEREVER hens are gathered, whenever hens may speak, the tale of little Jennifer shall pass from beak to beak; And hens who never gave their best shall look the other way.

To hear of one who gave her all soon after Empire Day.

In darkened nest she sat alone while hens looked in to mock; Much pryer hens with beady eyes for any passing cock.

"Poor Jennifer," they laughed aloud. "Poor Jennifer," they said.

"All work, no play, no boys, no dates; she might as well be dead."

No answer came from Jennifer, no word escaped her beak. Although a single, glistering tear ran down her feathered cheek.

When spring has passed she knew that eggs must be in short supply.

To bridge the gap she gave her all soon after Empire Day.

No flags shall be unfurled for her, no muted drums shall roll.

No parson speak a word for her, no village bell shall toll.

For one who gave her little life (she had no more to give) Except her humble offering that we on eggs might live.

When carelessly you eat your egg, if scrambled, boiled or fried.

Allow a moment for a thought for one who gladly died.

With beating heart, but unafraid, with calm and steady eye.

Because she loved her country more, soon after Empire Day.

Isn't it like her to go to the dentist now they're charging £1.

As I don't know Vi, dear, I wouldn't know if it is like her or not.

For weeks she's been going about with a face like a balloon. She could have had it for nothing. Now she'll have to pay for it.

Am I to understand one is now fined for having a face like a balloon?

Don't tell me that with all your Oxford education you've never heard of the National Health. And she's going to have twins on top of it.

On top of what, dear?

On top of all her teeth taken out. It's not pleasant to have twins without teeth.

I didn't know it made any difference.

After all that I expect they'll be born funny, too.

Funny in what way, dear?

I wonder if they'll be like her or their father?

If a maternal resemblance means that they will be born comedians with faces like balloons and no insides, I think it would be better for all concerned if they were like their father.

Unable Seaman

YOUR Uncle Nat has forgotten the name of the peer who said, in the House of Lords, "We don't want another Nat Gubbins Home Guard."

But he has not forgotten the remarks. Therefore the Home Guard will be deprived not only of the fullest-footed private ever to wear ammunition boots, but a lot of much-needed publicity.

People who live in little worlds of their own have no idea of the value of even the less solemn forms of publicity.

What the Army (if you can call it the Army) has lost, the Navy (if you can call it the Navy) will gain now that their Uncle has joined the Royal Naval Mine-sweeping Service.

From now on Unable Seaman Gubbins will tell you from time to time of his adventures in a service which is regarded, by those who ought to know, as more important than the Home Guard. So there.

Already he has been favourably impressed by the hearty welcome given to the first mine-sweepers of 'The Nore' at Chatham.

Even if it is the first time he ever joined a corps with women in it, it is also the first corps he has ever joined which offered him free beer.

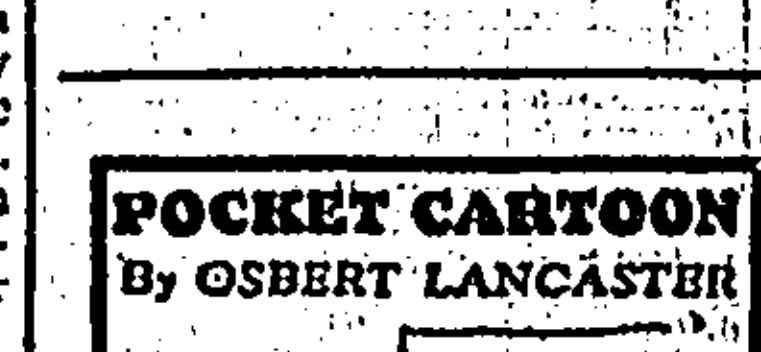

Moreover as one who has heard hundreds of pep talks by Army officers he can give Admiral Sir Cecil Harcourt, C-in-C. The Nore, ten marks out of ten for saying all that was necessary in the fewest possible words.

Although experience tells him that the free beer issue won't last, even if the women do, this anything-but-jolly-tar, with only one wife near one port, felt jollier in the coach coming home.

The only snag is the uniform. Unable Seaman Gubbins might look respectable enough in blue battledress but he feels that a blue beret worn at his age, might remind people of one of those elderly French guides selling those awful post-cards.

By OSWALD JACOBY

WHEN the Eastern Tournament begins in New York Alexander Nusslioff will be one of the players to watch. He recently became a Life Master (the highest ranking given by the American Contract Bridge League) after only a few years of tournament play.

In the hand shown today, Nusslioff came up with a defensive play that produced a fine score. Nusslioff held the East hand, so keep your eye on that hand and see if you can spot the right play ahead of time.

West opened the jack of hearts, and East took the ace. East returned the three of diamonds, allowing West to take two tricks in that suit. West then returned the diamond, and East... Are you ready with that fine defensive play?

Nusslioff played that third diamond with the king of spades. This play forced declarer to lose a trump trick.

South had to over-ruff with the ace, and now he could take the jack and queen of spades, but West was sure to win a trump trick with his ten.

Now see what happens if East ruffs with the seven of spades instead of the king. South enters dummy with the nine of spades, enters dummy with a heart, and leads a low trump towards the jack. East has to play his king of course, and South can draw three rounds of trumps with the ace, jack, and queen.

In short, South loses no trump trick when the hand is played that way, and he therefore makes his game contract.

GOLIATHS FALL LIKE NINEPINS IN THE GREAT AMERICAN SCRAMBLE FOR A PASSAGE TO HELSINKI

By "RECORDER"

No Olympic team is more difficult to squeeze into than that of the United States of America. There are some berths on it that are not too difficult and many a Swedish, British or German middle distance runner will miss Helsinki for the simple fact that he was born in the wrong country.

Odd Australians, South Africans and Chinese hop, step and jumpers, would not have found it difficult to get a ticket on a Helsinki-bound plane were they Americans. American standards in this event are still the lowest of the low. There are other events in which the Americans are not too strong, but an American Olympic berth is still just about the most difficult one to squeeze into and the 'David slays Goliath' and then trips himself up in the excitement' business is on again.

It is the same every Olympic year in the United States. Records keep falling and the record-breakers are finally left at home nursing the wounds of battle while somebody else goes to the Games.

This time there is a tougher guard than usual. It is normal in the United States for an athlete to call it a day once he leaves college.

A few who leave college a year or two before Olympic year and were so exceptionally good that they feel it is worth their while to train carry on.

HALF THE PROBLEM

There is a bigger crowd of ex-collegians in the fight for an Olympic berth this time than there has ever been. That is only half the problem for the current crop of American college athletes, whose standard this time is exceptionally high only in the Half Mile, High Jump, Pole Vault, Shot Put and Discus Throw.

Many ex-college athletes who would have normally packed up after three years of inter-collegiate athletics and then served now in the United States Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps.

All four of these institutions of Uncle Sam's not only grant sufficient leisure for the pursuit of athletics. They go further and the Pentagon, it seems, is determined to grab as many Olympic berths as it can. Names are all the time through six months' worth of the New York Times sports pages one can only but note the exceptionally high standard in the regional Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps tryouts.

Even odd 31-year-olds, who would have been limiting their athletic activity to bowling alleys had they not found themselves in the Army, are burning up the tracks for all they are worth. Names are re-appearing in these armed services meets that have been forgotten for more than four years.

The great devil - take - the hindmost race is on. The Champions keep dropping out one by one, overtrained, burned out, nursing pulled muscles, groin strains, hamstring injuries, achilles heels.

SIMPLE REASON

Some fall out for the simple reason that once peak form is hit it cannot last more than a week or two in top flight competition. A sample case is Meredith Gourdine, who last year long jumped 25 feet 9 inches and did the Low Hurdles in under 23 seconds.

In the ICAAAA Championships at Randall's Island he was second in a 237-second winner in the Low Hurdles, third in a 14.5 winner in the High Hurdles and second in the Long Jump at 24 feet 1 inch. In the indoor season he cleared 25 feet 1 1/2 inches, but he hasn't been near that since.

The same meet also demonstrated what can happen when a 24 Quarter-Miles in the 49-second class struggle for six places in the final. Eight men beat 45.5 seconds. In the heats, among them James Lingel of Cornell who three weeks earlier had run a "quarter" in 47.8 seconds.

In the final, Lingel finished sixth, beaten by five men, not a single one of whom has beaten 47.9 seconds this season.

EVEN BETTER

The ICAAAA Half-Mile was even better. Seven men beat 1 minute 53.5 seconds in the heats. By the time the final came the next day, they had had it. The winner was Lon Spurrier of the University of California in the more modest time of 1 minute 54.3 seconds.

It is generally agreed to by all track and field statisticians that Dick Atlessey, the world record-holder in the High Hurdles in 13.5 seconds, is the greatest high hurdler the world has yet seen.

There are other great high hurdlers in the United States, among them two men making a comeback, both finalists at the last Olympic Games. The result at the same Los Angeles Coliseum Relays in which MacDonald Bailey was beaten into fourth place in the 100 Metres was Craig Dixon first, Jack Davis of the University of Southern California second, Harrison Dillard third and Atlessey fourth.

Dillard is on the comeback trail. He set the world record in the High Hurdles in 1948 and then missed an Olympic berth in the event as he knocked over a hurdle and fell headlong in the final Olympic tryouts. He then scrambled into the 100 Metres, qualified, and the rest is history. He won the 100 Metres at Wembley.

The Los Angeles Coliseum Relays may have settled the 400 Metres berths. Second, third and fourth to Rhodes were Mal Whitfield, Ollie Matson and Walt McKibben.

Matson, an All-American football player, recently carried his 200-yard frame around 440 yards in 46.9 seconds. Whitfield is a certainty, consistent at between 46.6 and 47.2 seconds, and McKibben has a better record in the event than any other Americans.

SIX OVER 55 FEET

The same Relays produced some of the most amazing shot putting yet seen. Jim Fuchs won at 57 feet 3 1/2 inches. Fuchs was second at 56.05, Darrow Hooper third at 55.04, and Ollie Chandler fourth at 54.74.

But, of course, only six Americans have beaten 55 feet in the event this year and they all want to go to Helsinki. Sixteen have beaten 51 feet, and they also like air trips to foreign capitals.

Walter Davis of Texas A & M, recently cleared 6 feet 10 1/2 inches. It was announced by the news agencies that he had cleared 6 feet 11 1/2 inches for a new world record.

He actually did clear that height but records are hard to get. The take-off area was surveyed and its highest point was found to be an inch higher than its lowest point. Though the steel tape measured 6 feet 11 1/2 inches from the lowest point of the bar's sag to the terra firma point exactly perpendicularly beneath it, the required conditions had not been met.

There was no guarantee that Davis had taken off from the lowest point of the take-off area and the record is not yet his.

Davis may yet fail to get to Helsinki. Eight other Americans have cleared 6 feet 7 inches this season and three at least of them have cleared 6 feet 10 inches in practice. The three - Charles Holding, J. Lewis "Poppy" Hall and Arnold Bottoms - could edge out Davis in the final tryouts.

Only six Americans have cleared 6 feet 6 inches this season in competition. Bob Richards and Don Laz have cleared 15 feet in the Pole Vault this season and they are almost certain of a trip to Helsinki. Four others - Donald Cooper, Dick Coleman, George Mattes and Jack Brown - have cleared 14 feet 4 inches and eight more have cleared 14 feet. Three had run-ups by Richards or Laz and they may stay at home while someone else goes.

BATTLE OF THE GIANTS

But the real Battle of the Giants will be in the Discus Throw. The field - Slim Innes, 183.5; Fortune Gordien, 181.10; Jim Dillion, 171.4; Charles Emery, 171.3; Darrow Hooper, 169.10; Dick Doyle, 169.7; Bob Mathias, 168.7.

All seven could reach 175 feet on a lucky throw and could step on a 160 foot on three unlucky throws. It could well happen that Hooper, Doyle and Mathias will finish one-two-three in the final tryouts.

The final tryouts in 1948 had a large field of 105-footers. An Army representative named William Burton got into the Olympic team with 168 feet.

Burton was back with 181 feet in the recent Army tryouts. He was second - to someone named Jim Cooper - only 162 feet 5 1/2 inches.

There are still no certainties until the final tryouts are over and charity hopes have to be put on a certainty for Olympic Championships of their feet.

There is nothing like competition to bring the best out of the best, but it is nowhere as hectic as in the United States Olympic year and it mows the best down.

Europe is full of good Decathlon men in Olympic year. None of them is likely to stop short of winning the gold and silver medals in this event.

Mathias, particularly, has been in great form of late. The High Hurdles in 14.5 seconds and a Discus Throw of 168 feet 7 inches would qualify him on any Olympic team but the Americans are not likely to let him go.

There are still no certainties until the final tryouts are over and charity hopes have to be put on a certainty for Olympic Championships of their feet.

THE GAMBOLS

THE AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Four In A Row For The Americans

For the fourth time since the war, the English Amateur Golf Championship has been won by an American. Twenty-six-year-old Harvie Ward, who works in Atlanta, home town of the immortal Bobby Jones had the satisfaction of winning the Cup on his first visit to England.

Throughout the Championship, played at Prestwick, he proved himself the best player and his victory over another American, Frank Stranahan, in the final was fully deserved.

Stranahan, who had an early scare in the third round, when he was taken to the 20th green by Yorkshire's Joe Gont, showed only occasional glimpses of the golf which has won him the title twice since the war. Throughout the Championship he kept spraying his tee shots and although he made some remarkable recoveries he left himself too much to do on the greens in the final 36 holes.

FIRST STRAFACI

First of the Americans to come into prominence was Frank Strafaci of New York, six times winner of the Metropolitan title.

He played the first six holes at Prestwick in four under bogey and Henri Lamaze, the French Champion found himself four down. Using his wedge with deadly effect, Strafaci kept rolling two shots into one and although Lamaze fought bravely the struggle ended on the 16th green.

Another overseas entrant to feel the power of the Americans was D. D. Dobie of Kenya. He was drawn against the powerful Robert May, whose length of the tees was deciding factor in a match which ended at the 14th.

One by one the British entrants dropped out, but just when we were anticipating an all-American semi-final along came Scotland's Major Blair with two devastating rounds which disposed of last year's winner, Dick Chapman, and the reigning American champion, Billy Maxwell.

Blair's hour of triumph was, however, short-lived for, worn out by his exertions, he made his exit in the quarter-final to Joe Carr of Ireland who played well but not well enough to get the better of Frank Stranahan in the next round.

CLOSEST SHAVE

Meanwhile, in the top half of the draw, Ward had been making his way nearer and nearer the Championship with some first-class golf.

His closest shave came in the second round when he was held to one hole by E. C. Dwyer, an American, who was a Scot. entry. But once he began to find his touch Ward quickly forged ahead and looked a likely winner from the second day.

His only serious spot of bother came in the final when he comically lost his nerve on the last green after three putts on the third and then missing from 18 inches at the short fifth.

Many had expected Stranahan to take this later putt, but he was in low and war and Ward proved the right of his opponent's decision to make him hole out.

Stranahan, however, was having all sorts of difficulty from the tee and Ward was given the breathing space to effect a recovery. He was one up at the ninth and only a 15-yard putt by Stranahan at the home green prevented him going into lunch three up.

Two holes was nevertheless a

DICK CHAPMAN WINS FRENCH CHAMPIONSHIP

Paris, June 10. Dick Chapman, of Pithouville, N.C., held his second French amateur golf title today, but it required a come-from-behind rally to turn back young Billy Maxwell, of Odessa, Texas.

The 41-year-old Chapman, who lost his British amateur title last month to Harvie Ward, turned on a display of sub-par golf in the afternoon round to defeat Maxwell, 4 and 3.—Associated Press.

MORE THAN 40 NATIONS AT WIMBLEDON

London, June 10. More than 40 nations, probably the greatest number in the history of the event, will be represented at the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships which begin on June 23.

All the world's leading players are competing, with the United States and Australia making the strongest overseas challenge in the men's singles.

Among the thirteen Americans entered are the holder, Dick Savitt, Art Larsen, Tony Trabert, Marble Flann and Budgie Faby.

Australia has eleven entries, including Frank Sedgman, Ken McGregor (finalist last year) and Mervyn Rose.—Reuter.

SURREY ARE MAKING A TREMENDOUS BID TO WIN THE CHAMPIONSHIP

London, June 10.

Surrey are making a tremendous bid to win the English County Cricket Championship.

This extremely well-balanced side, under the leadership of Stuart Surridge, have won six matches and taken first innings points in the other two to gain 80 points out of a possible 96.

With a third of the season nearly gone, Surrey are setting a much faster pace than early leaders in previous years.

Warwickshire, the winners last season, had only 64 points tucked away at the corresponding stage. Incidentally, Warwickshire have been completely eclipsed this year, though possessing practically the same playing staff.

Middlesex are closely tracking Surrey. Their exciting win over Kent by 40 runs at Lord's today was their sixth in eight games and brought their points total to 72.

Yorkshire and Leicestershire lost their first matches of the season while lowly Sussex gained their first success.—Reuter.

CLOSE OF PLAY SCORES

London, June 10.

The following are the results of County cricket matches concluded today:

At Manchester - Lancashire beat Worcestershire by an innings and 138 runs. Lancashire 471 for seven declared, Worcestershire 143 and 160 (Statham, four for 43, Lomax four for 40).

At Hove - Sussex beat Somerset by 55 runs. Sussex 191 and 145, Somerset 163 and 118 (James three for 24, Oakman three for 29).

At Hinchley - Essex beat Leicestershire by 107 runs. Essex 338 for nine declared and 184 for nine declared, Leicestershire 210 and 176.

At Nottingham - Nottinghamshire-Hampshire match drawn. Hampshire 323 for nine declared and 195 for one. Nottinghamshire 477 for four declared.

At Birmingham - Warwickshire-Northamptonshire match drawn. Warwickshire 310 and at Kent - Kent made a great bid for the 100th minute of extra time. Kent's Brian Edrich, brother of the Middlesex skipper, was undefeated for 45 runs. Lancashire, too, are making a determined challenge. They whipped Worcestershire by an innings and 138 runs today for their most convincing win of the season. They are now third, 22 points behind Surrey with two matches in hand.

Worcestershire lost their four remaining wickets today in less than half an hour, Brian Statham claiming three of them for 15 runs with the new ball.

Yorkshire and Leicestershire lost their first matches of the season while lowly Sussex gained their first success.—Reuter.

WATCH OUT FOR A HUNGARIAN SURPRISE

Budapest. One of the strongest challengers for an Olympic swimming title at Helsinki this year is Hungary's freestyle, Geza Kadas, who is Europe's outstanding sprinter today.

Kadas, a handsome dark-haired athlete of 26, placed third in the 100 Metres Free Style at the London Olympics, since when he has proved himself the top man in Europe at this distance, having beaten his only worthy challenger, Alex Jany, of France, every time they have met.

In 1951 he was clocked at 56.3 seconds for the 100 Metres. This was not only a Hungarian record, but also placed him first in the world ranking list. To prove that this performance was no fluke, Kadas went on to beat the best swimmers in the Soviet Union and Alex Jany at Liege in the same year.

STEADILY IMPROVING

Since that time Kadas has steadily improved, and his current form indicates that he will be one of the favourites to return to Budapest with a gold medal. (Hungary's Ferenc Csik upset the world's best to win the 100 Metres Free Style at the Berlin Olympics.)

During his recent Olympic training Kadas regularly clocked around 58 seconds for the 100 metres without severely extending himself.

Recently he clocked this time in bitter cold weather with a strong wind blowing. This performance alone is considered an outstanding pointer to his chances when he competes in the Olympic Games next month. —United Press.

BREAKFAST COULD SINK THEM

Menu For HK Swimmers At Helsinki

Finland will take elaborate precautions to ensure that competitors at the Helsinki Olympic Games do not go hungry.

Here is a sample of a day's menu:

Breakfast - coffee, chocolate, cocoa, milk, butter, white bread, coffee, rolls, cheese, oatmeal porridge, cereals, jams, marmalade, honey, boiled and fried eggs, fried bacon, smoked ham, fresh fruit and juices.

Lunch - Hors d'oeuvres, butter, bread (toasted), meat broth, pies, two hot courses (one grilled meat and the other a mixed course), salads and preserved fruit.

Dinner - Bread, clear or thick soup, boiled or fried fish, meat, game, poultry, salads, vegetables, deserts and fresh fruit.

Despite this sumptuous fare, many a swimmer will bring their own national dishes.

The Italians will provide cases of spaghetti and macaroni, and the French will send barrels of wine. — London Express Service.

SOUTH CHINA'S SOCCER TOUR

In the first soccer match of their current tour, which was played on June 7, the South China XI drew 1-1 with Hanoi Police.

In their second game on June 8, also at Hanoi, the South China team scored an overwhelming 7-1 victory over a Combined Army side.

Tiny Tablet May Be Good News For 700 Million

London, June 10.

Good news for over 700 million people may lie in a tiny tablet, a new weapon in the fight against malaria.

For over three years, scientists of the Wellcome Research Laboratories in London and New York have been working on a new anti-malarial drug called Daraprim.

Their researches started from a dead given one day when an experimental compound was found to have a biochemical action suggesting anti-malarial possibilities.

In many disease-infected tropical areas it is claimed that a single dose of 50 milligrams—less than one grain and just sufficient to cover a small coin—has cleared the parasite from the blood and has relieved the fever in acute cases. Sometimes this has been achieved with an even smaller amount.

Dr L. G. Goodwin of the Wellcome Laboratories of Tropical Medicine, spent six months in Africa recently, mostly in Nigeria where he took daily doses of the new drug and deliberately exposed himself to infection. He allowed himself to be bitten by mosquitoes known to be infected and in the interests of his experiment disregarded the normal anti-malarial precautions. Despite this Dr Goodwin did not contract malaria.

NO TOXIC EFFECTS

Dr I. H. Vincke, Medical Director of malaria research at Elizabethville, Belgian Congo, tells in a publication of the Belgian Society of Tropical Medicine how he gave Daraprim to the inhabitants of two isolated villages in the Belgian Congo—Kasonga and Mumbema. They were given weekly doses of 25 milligrams during the winter months when transmission of malaria takes place. At the beginning of the experiment in September, 22 per cent had malaria parasites in the blood. By the middle of December all were negative and remained so.

No bigger than a piece of confetti in circumference, the Daraprim tablet is tasteless, and experiments have shown that there are no toxic effects to cause sickness or depression.

It is estimated that there are approximately 700 million persons infected with malaria and about three million deaths annually directly or indirectly from it.

BELL ACT REVISION DISCUSSION

Manila, June 10.
 A 15-man committee on the revision of the 1946 Bell Trade Act between the Philippines and the United States will press for selective free trade and will not consider extension of the present free trade arrangement, according to the committee's executive secretary, Andres Castillo, today.

Meanwhile, Opposition Nationalists Representative Daniel Z. Romualdez attacked the announced stand of opposition Senator Gil Puyat and Administration Liberal Representative Cipriano Allos who favoured a 10-year extension of the present trade relations with the United States.
 To be discussed at public hearings on Thursday and Friday are general classifications of items which will be included in the Free Import List, such as rubber and manufactures, oils, non-ferrous metals, and electrical materials and appliances.—France-Press.

Pepper Market In New York

New York, June 10.
 The pepper market ruled quiet with buyers holding off awaiting developments in the primary market.
 With Indian quotations generally on a parity with the domestic market, dealers felt that changes there would be quickly reflected in the local market. Dealers quoted spot pepper, nominally at $1.52 a pound, while advance were from $1.40 to $1.47, depending on steamer position. Shipment prices were generally unchanged.—United Press.

OUTLOOK FOR AMERICA
No Serious Recession In Next Two Years

But Some Slackening Off In Business Expected

Washington, June 3.

Government economists, who have recently been exchanging views on long-term prospects, find themselves in pretty general agreement in forecasting that there will be no big depression or even serious recession with intolerable unemployment in 1953 and 1954.

A slackening of business from present peak levels is anticipated, however, with economic activity continuing at a high level, but in 1953 not as favourable as this year, and in 1954 not as good as in 1953.

Unemployment, now at about 1,800,000, may possibly rise to as much as 4m. or 5m. by 1954 or 1955—about the same as or a little more than during the recession of early 1949, according to the economists.

These predictions, it must be stated at once, are conditioned on two basic assumptions, either or both of which could be false.

The first is that there will be no radical change, either military or psychological, in the present course of foreign affairs.

The second is that the national defence programme will be carried out more or less as it is now planned, with expenditures running at about $55,000m. to $60,000m. annually in 1953 and 1954.

DEPRESSING FACTOR

There are many other uncertainties clouding the outlook, and the forecasts are necessarily speculative. But, from the fact that at present available, top level Federal officials concerned with the economic scene see the general picture as set out below.

Next year many divergent trends will be at work, pointing in total to a fairly high level of business activity, although not as strong as at present. The very high post-war expenditures by business for capital equipment—plant and facilities—are no longer expanding and, in fact, are due to contract. This is the chief depressing factor.

NEW PLANT

Nevertheless, the rate of investment for new plant and equipment will still be at a high level, even though not as high as in the last few years. Many industries have firm commitments for long-term capital expansion programmes. For example, a great expansion programme is scheduled in the electric utility industry, to be carried out over the next five years. The chemical industry, also, has broad expansion plans, many for new products in the synthetic, plastic, antibiotic and petroleum chemical fields.

These are all long term and provide a good base for high capital expenditures for some time.

Similarly, defence spending is scheduled to be maintained throughout the year. Even if the limit set by the House of Representatives on defence expenditures—a ceiling of $40,000m. for the next fiscal year—is retained by the Senate, the rate will still be high with the addition of Federal outlays for the atomic energy programme and stockpiling.

In the area of consumer spending, demand may continue slack, as it is now, for goods such as cars and household appliances. But demand is brisk, and is likely to be maintained, for food, clothing and services, while for housing it is very vigorous indeed.

AN "ADJUSTMENT"

Economists see, therefore, what they choose to call an "adjustment," but not a depression.

As sustaining factors in this situation, they cite a steadily growing population; the demands of State and local government for more public works, such as schools, highways and sewers; the need for replacement of the enormous stock of capital equipment in place (estimated 80 per cent more now in terms of plant and facilities and machines than at the end of World War II); and the need of consumers to replace durable goods purchased this year and last.

The decline in expenditures for capital goods may produce a glacial degree of unemployment in particular areas and industries, with a total of perhaps 5m. But the consensus of opinion is that it will not be worse than this, and may not be over.

NY Cotton Closes On Easy Note

New York, June 10.

Cotton prices closed today on a note of easiness after swinging feverishly over a range of around $1.25 a bale.

Dealers were scared of getting too far out on either side of the market.

The collapse of the steel strike settlement negotiations and President Truman's request for steel seizure legislation injected new uncertainty.

The caution increased among operators who thought that the recent sharp advance made prices vulnerable for the time being. Despite spurts of activity in the textile market, dealers felt that the over-all picture in the cloth market has not improved materially.

The Government weekly weather and crop summary said the condition of the crop ranges from fair to mostly good.

The market opened up 7 to 8 off 6 points. After mid-day, prices fluctuated irregularly but favoured the downside, closing almost on the lows and off two to 22 points net on the day.

World Sugar Record

Washington, June 10.

The Department of Agriculture says that world sugar production will reach a new high record with the production of centrifugal cane beet sugar estimated at 38,200,000 short tons in 1951-52.

The Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations said the indicated world production of non-centrifugal sugar increased to 6,200,000 short tons in 1951-52 from 6,100,000 tons the previous year.

It said, "The world centrifugal cane sugar production is estimated to total 24,100,000 tons in 1951-52, an increase of 10.8 per cent over the 21,000,000 tons of last season. The 1951-52 production exceeds the year averages for 1945-46 and 1935-36 by 31.3 and 40.9 per cent, respectively.

Cuba alone has increased production by 1,000,000 tons and the production of Brazil is 800,000 tons greater than that of last year. The estimated Philippines production is 1,000,000 tons.—United Press.

Balloons
Trap The Greenfly

To find out more about the habits of "aerial plankton"—minute insects like greenflies, plant bugs, fruit flies and others which suddenly devastate gardens and crops a scientist borrowed some R.A.P. barrage balloons.

The scientist, Dr. C. G. Johnson of Rothamsted Research Station, Harpenden, Herts, flew the balloons at heights up to 4000 feet.

On to the cables he snapped electrically controlled nets. They were black with insects when hauled down.

Colson
Defends His Actions

Koje Is. Incidents

Washington, June 10. Colonel Charles Colson, formerly Brigadier-General, who succeeded Brig.-Gen. Francis Dodd (now colonel) as the Kojima Camp commandant, has said he feels that his action in preparing, signing and delivering to the Reds the letter containing concessions "was not only fully justified but bore the approval of the headquarters above me."

Col. Colson wrote the letter to the Reds in an effort to obtain the release of Gen. Dodd, who was then held by North Korean dihard Communist prisoners in Compound 70.

The statements by Col. Colson and Col. Dodd were made public today by the Armed Services Committee. They were obtained and supplied to the House and Senate committees by the Defence Department. The Department also supplied a chronological account on numerous prison riots preceding the Dodd incident and a detailed report on his capture and release.

GENERAL'S ADVICE

Both officers said that any other course would have resulted in Gen. Dodd's death, the slaughter of thousands of Communist prisoners and the killing of many civilians and United Nations personnel.

The report showed that Col. Colson had been advised by Brigadier-General Paul Yount, his superior, to "agree to anything reasonable" to free Gen. Dodd but "admit nothing that was untrue."

Col. Colson cleared the first draft of his concession letter with Gen. Yount and read him the second draft over the telephone.

The report said that "certain key words" in this version were not received by Gen. Yount.

Gen. Yount was reprimanded by the Army for his part in the affair. The report said the third revision which the Communists accepted as a price of Gen. Dodd's release was not cleared by Col. Colson with Gen. Yount.

NIGHT CLUB
CLOSED DOWN

London, June 10. Churchills, a prominent night club patronised by Princess Margaret, was put out of business by a judge today for selling drinks after hours.

Prosecutor C. Humphreys declared the West End night club had "consistently and gravely ignored the licensing laws" by serving liquor as late as 4 a.m.—two hours past legal closing time.—Associated Press.

RUSSIANS FACE
A DILEMMA

New Situation At West
Berlin Radio Station

Berlin, June 10.

Fourteen hours after British troops had removed their barbed wire barricades from the Soviet-controlled Radio Berlin in the British sector, the staff remained inside still awaiting orders from East Berlin.

Staff replacements from East Berlin were refused admittance by their colleagues speaking through the locked iron gates at the entrance.

A British official said, "It seems that our introduction of passes for anyone entering the building after tomorrow has confronted the Russians with a dilemma. If they let everyone out they will have to recognise our right to control entry into the building."

British officials today discussed with the West German authorities the form of pass to be issued.

Tonight, one British military policeman and one West German policeman stood by the locked main entrance.

Russian guards inside the building still kept out of sight.

The East German Volkskammer (Parliament) has been summoned to meet on Wednesday next week to discuss the budget and other questions, the East German News Agency ADN reported today.

Allied observers here thought that the Volkskammer might hear statements from Government leaders indicating whether any part of the budget was to be allocated for East German "armed defence" forces.

AD FOR W. BERLIN

Meanwhile, it is reported from Bonn that the West German Chancellor, Dr. Konrad Adenauer, today instructed all Government departments to place more and bigger signs in West Berlin. He asked the nine State Governments to do the same.

Dr. Adenauer said that his Finance and Economics Ministers, Fritz Schaefers and Ludwig Erhard, would go to Berlin on Thursday to discuss increased help. He himself would go later.

"We will do everything possible to ensure that West Berlin and West Berliners come what may, feel linked to us as closely as possible, both economically and humanly," Dr. Adenauer said.

West Germany's special representative in West Berlin, Heinrich Voelkel, said that the city needed additional orders worth 1,250,000,000 marks a year to live on its own production and not on subsidies.

The Mayor of Berlin, Ernst Reuter, speaking as a member of the West German Bundestag, said that the Russians would not start a new blockade but would come "through the back door of economic strangulation because they dare not attack frontally."

Amid loud applause from all parties, except the Communists, he said, "We know how to defend our freedom and we shall always defend it."—Reuter.

SOVIET DEMAND

Bonn, June 10. The Chief of the Control Commission, General Vassily Chulikov, today demanded that the American Occupation authorities immediately discontinue their armed patrols on the Helmsdorf-Berlin autobahn.

He made the request in a letter to Acting American High Commissioner in Germany, Samuel Reber, published here today.

General Chulikov called "groundless" the American protest against Russian interference with American patrols and insisted that the Americans "take measures to discontinue immediately all attempts of armed patrolling of the Berlin-Helmsdorf autobahn."

"I must state that the Soviet military authorities will also in future take all measures stemming from the responsibilities of the Soviet forces to provide security. Commandant's services (military police functions) and regulations for the autobahn," he added.

General Chulikov said the Russian authorities had frequently called the attention of the Americans to "the inadmissible violations of the established regulations of the movement of American troops" along the Berlin-Helmsdorf autobahn. However, these violations are continuing.

Another
C'wealth
Conference

London, June 10.

Commonwealth Prime Ministers are expected to hold a private conference here during the time of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth in June next year, a usually reliable source said today.

Asked in the House of Commons today whether he would call a general Commonwealth conference next year on economic, political and strategic matters, Prime Minister Churchill said: "These matters are being attentively considered."

Commonwealth Prime Ministers conferred here in January 1951.

Dr. Reginald Bennett (Conservative) asked the Prime Minister if he would consider bringing up the question of export tariff from various countries at the conference.

Mr. John Dugdale (Labour) asked for an assurance that if the conference was held, the Colonies, which played an important part in the British economic struggle, would be adequately represented.

Mr. Churchill said: "Both points are obviously among matters being attentively considered."

THE OBJECT

Earlier Mr. Thomas Brown (Labour) asked the President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Peter Thorneycroft, whether he would now consider the advisability of reconvening the conference of Commonwealth Ministers with a view to securing a broader co-operative economic policy.

Mr. Thorneycroft replied: "It is our hope to discuss these matters with other Commonwealth Governments. The object would be a frank and full discussion with them of our common interests in this field. In the meantime the close and frequent consultations between the Governments in the Commonwealth which the conference of Finance Ministers in January reaffirmed, are proceeding as a matter of day to day business."

Mr. Brown then asked if the Minister would give a specific date for the conference.

Mr. Thorneycroft said that the timing of the conference would be a matter for the whole Commonwealth.

A usually reliable source said that the British Government had consulted the Commonwealth Governments about the date of the Coronation on June 2 next year.

Commonwealth Prime Ministers and leading Commonwealth statesmen are expected to be in London for the Coronation. Then there would be an opportunity for holding a Commonwealth conference, the source added.—Reuter.

INTELLIGENCE TEST SOLUTION

Robert will be back at T.V. for the second time at the moment, when he will be asked for the second time. Before then they will have to wait another three months. So after their third meeting, Robert will be back at T.V. for the third time. While Robert is away, the source added, the source added.—Reuter.

Full Courts
Of Appeal Turn
Down Pleas

The Full Court of Appeal comprising the Chief Justice, Sir Gerard Howe, and the Senior Puisne Judge, Mr Justice Williams this morning refused two criminal appeals against severity of sentence.

Luk Shing-lin, 25, tall, who was sentenced to seven years and 12 strokes of the cane for robbery with aggravation and assault with intent to rob in the April Sessions asked for his sentence to be reduced stating that he had already suffered enough hardship whilst in custody.

He said he had a family comprising an aged mother, a younger sister and two younger brothers dependent on him for support. He asked for a shorter sentence in order that he might return to normal life soon. He promised to turn over a new leaf.

Refusing the application, the Chief Justice said that the Court saw no reason to interfere with the sentence which was normal for the crime of robbery with aggravation.

Sentenced on April 22 last to five years each for unlawfully using an instrument to procure a miscarriage, Suen Ping-hin, 52, and Au Yeung-kwan, 30, pleaded for a reduction of the sentence.

Suen said he had a family to support and was getting on in years.

SPUR OF MOMENT

Second appellant said he committed the crime on the spur of the moment for which he repented immensely. He had depended on him his parents and several brothers and sisters. "The heavy sentence passed upon me is tantamount to putting my whole family on the verge of starvation," he pleaded. He asked for the sentence to be reduced to enable him to return home at the earliest possible date.

Mr Justice Williams said that appellants were convicted of a most serious offence and in the view of the Court the sentence passed on them was not manifestly excessive in view of the circumstances of the case.

In both appeals, the Court made a concession to the effect that the prison sentences should start from the date of conviction and not from today.

Mr W. A. Blair-Kerr, Crown Counsel, assisted by Del. Insp. C. Chan and Del. Insp. F. Roberts, appeared for the Crown.

REFUSED

Three applications for leave to appeal were refused by Mr Justice Gould and Mr Justice Reece in the Full Court this morning.

Lau Yee, a fortune-teller, sentenced to five years for robbery with violence, appealed against conviction saying that he was falsely accused and wrongly convicted. He said that the woman complainant owed him $2.50 for a fortune telling.

Mr Justice Gould remarked that the Full Court was not there to re-try the case. The Jury had listened to the accused's story and all the other evidence and did not accept his version.

Wong Ting-cheung, a Shanghai man, sentenced to seven years for wounding with intent to murder, appealed against severity of penalty saying he had a mother, wife and children dependent on him.

Replying to the Court, Mr. Patrick Yu, Crown Counsel, said that the evidence against the appellant rested on the identification by complainant and his own admission in the witness-box at the trial that he was present at the attack.

Dismissing the appeal, Mr Justice Gould remarked that the complainant was very nearly killed by the victim's knife and the sentence, if anything, was on the light side.

Kwai Chi-kong appealed against severity of sentence of six years and 11 strokes for robbery with violence, saying that he only picked up the money but he knew it was wrong to pick up something which did not belong to him. He had a mother, aged 60, a wife and children to support and asked for a lighter sentence.

"I have seldom seen evidence stronger than the evidence given against you. As for the sentence, it is consistent with sentences passed for similar crimes in the Colony at the present time," remarked Mr Justice Gould in refusing the appeal.

Living
Language

Why we say Getting applied.

The Dutch "splices" from which our "splice" comes meant to split, which is the opposite of the present meaning of "splice." This is because a rope was split and its various strands separated before being interwoven or "married" together to make a continuous length. Sailors first referred to marriage as "getting spliced" and now the phrase is in general use.
